

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In an analyzer, to recognize contents of a large amount of analyzer information with a few procedures.

A software structure comprising user interface means 1 for handling input and output for an operator, analyzer information 2 made up of measurement information and analysis information, and comments corresponding to the measurement information and the analysis information, analyzer information storage means 3 for storing analyzer information, analyzer information display designation means 4 for visually displaying analyzer information, comment creation means 5 enabling creation and editing of comments for the analyzer information, analyzer information selection means 6 enabling selection of arbitrary analyzer information from among a plurality of items of analyzer information being displayed, selection sensing means 7 for notifying of detection of arbitrary analyzer information using the analyzer information selection means 6, and comment display designation means 8 for receiving notification from the selection sensing means 7, and displaying a comment corresponding to selected analyzer information.